BRIEF ABSTRACT OF LETTER

Recommends under the circumstances stated that the annual Grant of Rs 3000 to the Salvation Army Tata Silk Farm at Bangalore, may be continued for another year from the 1st March 1914

NOTES AND ORDERS

Noted for orders with Reference

2 An annual grant of Rs 3000 was sanctioned for the Salvation Army Tata Silk Farm for a period of 3 years in G.O No 4992-6/Edn 446-08 dt the 10th December 1909 This term expired on 28/2/191

and Govt recently sanctioned the Continuance of the grant for one year more [Vide G.O No 3918-12/Edn 126-12-8 dated the 25th Sept 1913] In sanctioning the Renewal of grant the Govt has observed as follows -

"The question whether we should continue to support the institution to the same or any lesser extent should be examined after the arrival of the new expert and in consultation with the Technical officers and the Committee Concerned".

3 The Govt states that the period for which the grant has been Renewed expires on the 28th February 1914 and Recommends on the application of the Salvation Army that it may be Renewed for another year from 1-3-1914

4 The Director of Industries & Commerce was subsequently asked whether Govt were getting full value for the money expended by them, and thought probably that the Salvation Army, who appeared fairly open that they had nothing to learn from anybody would ever modify their methods In view however of the rather limited nature of his experience in Sericulture, & consequent inability to make constructive suggestions, the Director was unwilling to recommend any change in the arrangement, & the grant was accordingly continued for another year

5 Now that we have a silk expert there is probably no longer any need for deference in handling the question He may perhaps be asked to investigate whether really the institution answers its proper objects, which include

(a) Experiments of all kinds

(b) Instruction in the best methods

(c) Practical demonstration

6 In view of the increased attention that is now being devoted to the development of Sericulture, it is probable that the time is ripe for considering whether a Govt Institute might not be started

7 In the meantime the grant perhaps may be continued for another year, subject to the condition that the suggestions to be made by the Imperial Govt Silk expert after inspection, shd be adopted by the Salvation Army

8 The Silk Expert may also be written to in the matter & asked to formulate his suggestions & proposals be able to appraise the work of the Salvation army farm more correctly than at present taking into consideration all the local conditions.

9 I dare say the Salvation army will be willing to benefit by any occasional advice which an man may give, but we may leave it purely to mutual persuasion arrangement next year when the question of renewal comes up we shall be in a position to decide definitely whether it is worth while for the State to spend 3000 Rs a year on the Salvation Army farm.

24) I append to this Signor Washington Jari's Opinion

2 My own view is that the present grant may be continued till our sericultural farms are well established and are available for training students without their being sent to the Tata's Farm, and subsequently the grant may be reduced to what may be permissible to a grant-in-aid institution

25) The Salvation Army authorities are not aggressively religious, have afforded all possible help to such experiments as our officers wish to try therein and the farm is employing on wages an increasing number of Mysore ryots and weavers in reeling and weaving silk The Superintendent and his staff also visit places in the interior and exhibit silk ware and machinery in all the exhibitions in the State

26) 3 On personal enquiries made I learn that they have spent since they took charge of the Farm in 1909, nearly Rs 9,000/- in putting up buildings, purchased lands for Rs 5,000/- and during the three calendar years 1911,1912 and 1913 invested Rs 13,588 in the purchase of raw materials, R 7,717 in wages and Rs 11,958 in supervision charges Their sales amounted to Rs 21,563 They have 12 acres under mulberry cultivation (12 to 15 varieties) They have trained annually about 12 Government students and last year, they had 48 private students They have also 20 village boys They pay R 719/- as monthly wages During the last year, they despatched 50,000 mulberry cuttings and 3,00,000 eggs and have supplied 50 machines in he shape of spinning wheels, hand looms, automatic looms and fly shuttles In the year 1913, they reared 31 maunds of their own cocoons and purchased 250 maunds and reared 6 maunds of Eri They sold 310 lbs of raw silk, had 175 lbs for their own purposes and sen 200 lbs to ~~Swit~~ Switzerland All this is valuable work

(3) 4 On the whole they serve a ver useful purpose and run their farm on popular if not scientific lines To that extent they are fully worthy of some substantial recognition from the State as a permanent measure

(4) 5 I have been a constant visitor at the Farm for the last several years continuously and I have no hesitation in strongly commending the farm to the favourable consideration of Government

(29) NOTE

My opinion is that the methods now adopted by the Farm for rearing worms are not suitable In reeling and weaving also, the systems adopted by the Farm are useless for the modern industry because the aim of the Salvation Army is to encourage the cottage industry But the character of all European and American industries is to make a factory industry on a big scale and with most modern methods and appliances in order to compete successfully in the market Therefore the Government cannot follow the idea of the Farm Till the Government establishes proper sericultural farms and schools, the students can be trained in the Tata's Farm but for the rearing of worms and mulberry cultivation, our students must complete their training in our Farm at Chennapatna The Government may continue their present grant so long as our students are trained there in all the branches mentioned above As our own farms become available for the training of students, the grants may be reduced and the grant may be stopped when none of our students are trained there

To no 2559 33 Office of the Director of Industries and Commerce, 26th June 1914

The Salvation Army, according to their lights, have done their best to encourage the silk industry all over India, but it is doubtful if their efforts have resulted in any material progress If Government intend to establish a permanent Sericultural Department, it is I consider essential that the Salvation Army should work under the direction of the Expert at the head of that Department, and if they are prepared to do this, grants--in-aid may be given on a sufficient scale to enable them to train students efficiently But if the Salvation Army wish to remain an independent Institution, I do not see how they can claim any assistance from the Mysore Government The Mysore State is simply interested in the development of sericulture within the limits of the State, and of the Kollegal section of the Coimbatore district Mysore merchants and traders have large interests in Kollegal, and considerable quantities of cocoons reared in Kollegal are reeled in Mysore

34 From the figures ~~my~~ furnished by Mr Subba Rao, it would appear that during the last three calendar years, the Salvation Army has spent Rs 33,563 in running the Institute, and that they have recovered Rs 21,563 by sale proceeds, leaving a balance of Rs £ 12,000, that is to say, the net expenditure on the Farm has been Rs 4,000 a year, of which the Mysore Govt have contributed Rs 3,000 From this, it would appear that the Farm costs the Salvation Army Rs 1,000 a year, and that the Mysore Govt are paying three-fourth of the cost of maintaining this Institution If these figures be correct,-- and I take them on Mr Subba Rao's authority,-- it appears to me that Government, through its silk Expert, is entitled to exercise a considerable degree of control over the work done at the Farm For comparison with these figures, I may state that the silk filature at Channapatna, which is engaged in training about 30 Muhhamadan boys, is now turning out about seven hundred and fifty rupees worth of silk per month, or say Rs 9,000 in the course of a year, this quantity may be expected to gradually increase as the boys become more efficient I am not able to furnish Government at present with accurate figures as to the cost of running this filature, but I should think it is less than - Rs 100 a month in addition to the sale proceeds

35 I notice that Dr Coleman states "that it will be a long time before the whole of the manufacturing of silk in Mysore can or will be placed on a factory - scale", but I should like to point out that a very considerable amount of silk weaving is now being done in the Government weaving Factory at Dodanna's Hall, and that if the value of the silk cloths turned out

NOTE—Contn sheet

GPB—60 000—7 11 11

there is added to the value of the work done at Channapatna, the total considerably exceeds that at the Salvation Army Silk Farm, as given by Mr Subba Rao

36 Personally when I first came to Mysore with no previous experience of the silk industry, I derived considerable assistance from the Salvation Army Farm, but now I do not think that it can render any useful assistance to the Department of Industries & Commerce, and in regard to develcpments in the future, I prefer to rely for expert assistance upon Signor Washington Mari rather than upon Mr Jackson, the Manager of the Tata Silk Farm

37 To sum up, if the Salvatien Army Silk Farm are willing to work under the direction of a Mysore Sericultural Department, and to ~~fall~~ follow definitely, ~~with~~ whatever policy that Department will identify itself with, I think the grant should be continued, and if necessary increased But if the Salvatior army wish to remain on independent footing, then I think they can have no claim upon Govt for any assistarce

Copies of the opinions of the Heads of Departments and other Officers consulted, had been circulated to the members Several of the members said that the Farm was doing useful work and was not aggressively religious A good many of the Mysore ryots and students were engaged in work and also trained Under these circumstances, the Committee were unanimously in favour of recommending to Government the continuance of the present annual grant of Rs 3,000/= the grant being renewed year after year, if necessary, so long as the Farm retained its present useful character and so long as the Managers are as at present willing to co-operate with Government authorities and abide by any practical advice which may be given to them

Then the following Resolution was arrived at -
